

Calling Down the Rain

Tarot

They've left me broken,
But I never give up my dreams.
The tears are spoken only in screams.
The gods have left me in this world of belief.
They gave me this live.
Then hung me as a thief.

Calling down the rain
To crumble the earth away.
Calling down the rain
I will be back today.

They promised me wonders, I was dead in the ditch.
They gave me magic, and burned me as a witch.

Calling down the rain
I have thirsted in my grave.
Calling down the rain
To crumble the earth away.
Calling down the rain
The rust will eat through my chains.
Calling down the rain
I will be back today.
I'll be back today!

The webs of deceit are as real
As the mind that conjures them.
I walk under the clouds,
Black as grief, red as mayhem.

Calling down the rain
I have thirsted in my grave.
Calling down the rain
To crumble the earth away.
Calling down the rain
The rust will eat through my chains.
Calling down the rain
I will be back today.
To blow you away!
