

The Ending

Tedeschi Trucks Band

His guitar is laughing and filling the room
Everybody's smiling while he's singing his blues
You might not understand just what it is he's saying
But it's the truth

His face is dancing, his eyes bugging out
Looking in your soul and pulling it right out
You might not understand just what it is you're hearing
But it's a joyful sound

Door opened up and he walked right through
Some folks thought he was just pretending
Telling those stories, just like they're true
He fell out on stage
With a smile on his face
Never giving away
The ending

Just blowing his smoke and playing along
He turned into the light of his favorite song
Looked down at his watch and said "it's time to go"
And he was gone

Door opened up and he walked right through
Some folks thought he was just pretending
Telling those stories, just like they're true
He fell out on stage
With a smile on his face
Never giving away
The ending

His guitar is laughing and filling the room
Everybody's smiling while he's singing his blues
It's hard to understand but I think he understood
Yes he knew
Yes he knew oh he knew
The ending