

The Fall

Teenage Fanclub

I fell into another world
I tried to discover what I was
I fell into my lovers arms and I tried to recover what I'd lost

I'll miss part of the day
I feel the feelings I've lost
Crossing lines I'd never thought I'd cross
To uncover new ways

I turn my back on the city sights
And I climb into the mountains to see the stars
My eyes fixed time on those ancient lights
Like gravity makes fountains what they are

I'll miss part of the day
I feel the feelings I've lost
Spend my time and never count the cost
Crossing lines I'd never thought I'd cross
To uncover a new way

A new way

The leaves on the trees shield my eyes from the sun
But the leaves that I see they won't be there for long
When I light a fire underneath what I was
I won't feel sad only warmed by the loss
