

Way Back Home

Temperance

So now I'm reaching a point of a view
Where I'll forget people and their rules
I need to go in a place where I can stay alone, I can stay alone
Through the times and though the spaces
Searching for peace just out of my way
Without my eyes I won't look around anymore

During the story of my life I was feeling dark inside
After the storm I'll be back again

I hear a voice that speaks inside my head
Telling me not to change the way I am
But to believe and chase the best everyday
Another moon will smile upon my way
Another sun will lighten up my face
Don't be surprised, the circle never ends
You can't leave to remain

I can't remember my previous name
I can't remember people over me
I see the dawn between heaven and hell
I have no friends and yet I have no rights
By the sea but I can't see the tides
I feel alone in this lonely world

During the story of my life I was feeling dark inside
After the storm I'll be back again

I hear a voice that speaks inside my head
Telling me not to change the way I am
But to believe and chase the best everyday
Another moon will smile upon my way
Another sun will lighten up my face
Don't be surprised, the circle never ends
You can't leave to remain

Another street to find my way back home
Don't be afraid in this long, long day
I'll never do something right or wrong
I walk by the street, I have no face, no name

I hear a voice that speaks inside my head
Telling me not to change the way I am
But to believe and chase the best everyday
Another moon will smile upon my way
Another sun will lighten up my face
Don't be surprised, the circle never ends
You can't leave to remain
