Eastbound

Ten Second Epic

Exhale as I hang up the phone.
My stomach sinks like a stone.
It never feels like home without you here.
I stumble through nights on the road.
The hotel key lost in the cold...
But my room is a time zone over.

I lost my way,
But I didn't notice, I didn't notice
How fast things change,

And now I'm travelling east bound.
Don't know if you miss me.
I've been living so hard and coming up empty.
I, I was always missing you.
East bound,
Waking up face down,
Doubting myself for not turning around.
I, I was always missing you.

The postcards don't ever get sent,
They're stuck in our hearts like cement.
Written to mail but stranded on the floor.
Every glass left with a sip,
And each glass will loosen my grip.
Reminds me what I left behind...

And now I'm travelling east bound.
Don't know if you miss me.
I've been living so hard and coming up empty.
I, I was always missing you.
East bound,
Waking up face down,
doubting myself for not turning around.
I, I was always missing you.

And all the nights we stayed awake,
And all the days that we were wasting time, wasting time.
But I don't see a way out.
'Cause we built this brick by brick,
Then I tore it to the ground.
I was heading for a wall...
I'm not giving up now.

West bound,
Driving on empty,
Counting down towns until you're beside me.
I, yeah I'm coming back for you.
West bound,
coming up empty,
Counting down nights until you're beside me.
I, yeah I'm coming back to you.
Whoa oh oh
Yeah I'm coming back for you.
Whoa oh oh
Yeah I'm coming back for you.

Whoa oh oh
Whoa oh oh
Whoa oh oh
