

She Keeps Walking

Ten Years After

Traffic was stopped, I was caught at a corner
Already felt like one of those days
The light was turning as I looked up and saw her
I called her name but she kept walking, walking, walking away

She was wearing the jacket I bought her
On the night she said she couldn't stay
She wouldn't listen when I tried to stop her
I called her name but she kept walking, walking, walking away

She keeps walking, never looking back
She believes that life goes by too fast
I'm just someone she knew yesterday
I was waiting but she kept walking away

She likes to think that she's a ballerina
She likes to say that the world's her stage
It's been a year since the last time I saw her
I called her name but she kept walking, walking, walking away

She keeps walking, never looking back
She believes that life goes by too fast
I'm just someone she knew yesterday
I was waiting but she kept walking away

She keeps walking, never looking back
She believes that life goes by too fast
I'm just someone she knew yesterday
I was waiting but she kept walking away
