

Loudest Silence

Tessanne Chin

I hate to feel like a stranger in my own house
Now saying words but my eyes are cursing you out
And you're no better cuz I'm quite as well
And in my mind I'm thinking that in your mind you say: Go to hell!

And now I'm just walking right by you flipping my hair
And you're just walking right by me and count nothing
And when I'm getting anywhere, anywhere at all
And the only sound of my house is coming out of these four walls

Is the loudest silence that I've ever heard
All the way not saying any word
But tension in the room, it's cutting pretty deep
And I'll give anything I mean anything
Just to hear you talk to me
Talk to me, talk to me, baby, baby can you talk to me?
Talk to me, talk to me, baby, baby can you talk to me?
Cuz the loudest silence that I've ever heard
And when not even speaking any words

If you already know baby know what's right
So we both just really keep quiet to keep our pride
And you're too stupid to give into a night
But the funny thing is about tomorrow morning it won't be fine
But for now I'm walking right by you flipping my hair
And you're just walking right by me and count nothing
And when I'm getting anywhere, anywhere at all
Cuz this elephant in this room it's too hard to wait on

Is the loudest silence that I've ever heard
All the way not saying any words
But tension in the room, it's cutting pretty deep
And I'll give anything I mean anything just to hear you talk to me
Baby if you only knew, how bad I wanna talk to you
How I give anything just to give just to hear you say something
I just wanna work it out, I don't even really know are we fighting back
Ooh I'll do anything to hear your voice baby
Talk to me, talk to me baby, baby can you talk to me
Talk to me, talk to me baby, baby can you talk to me
Cuz this is the loudest silence I've heard
Cuz I'm even speaking
