There Comes A Time

Tha Eastsidaz

Yeah, Jellyroll on the beat What we gone do on this Eastside track right here We gone give it up uh, to our favorite girls To momma - without you there would be no me You feel what I'm talkin 'bout? Yeah

There comes a time, when we Need more, love in the family Thanks for.. (thank you momma) The good times and, the bad times, can't you see Thank you for everything you've done for me (you only get one)

Momma this all my life I used to put everything on you, and I knew it wattn't right You snatched me out the deep cracks You hooked my ass everytime I talked smack I know they sayin, "Gladys, your son stressin off the system" I used to kiss her everyday, look momma I miss her Do you remember, when I almost died I'm back a new man and I didn't even cry I used to tell lies, steal from your purse, until I seen Pancake pushed away in a hearse Momma it hurts - you dreamed of how I got smoke? Lil' cousin off dope, cuz that's all she wrote I did a song wit her - lemme go find it so I can play it for ya And bang it for my lil' neice Sade She remind me of me and my big sister when we used to play I love you mom until I die

I know I gave you hell, but you raised me well Barely twelve years old but I stayed in jail Supposed to be up at school, but I be ditchin to steal And even though we kinda po', we ain't missin a meal Feelin bad cuz my pants and my shirt don't match I'm burglurizin, and I'm snatchin every purse on fat Nobody helpin you with rents since pops done split So I'm advanced in my plans, how to clock my chips Takin nonsense rich, started runnin with Crips Handcuffs on my wrists, now your lovin I miss Cuz I'm the baby of the family, your pride and joy But I know sometimes ya wonder what's inside ya boy Stay patient mamma, I'ma figure out my path Then we can laugh and forget about the past I have my own children, so now it's my turn And I'm grateful for the chance, now I get to learn True love..
