

Now I can see the only thing that's keeping me from you
I've tried to make the best of this time
But no one seems to know why you're making the same mistakes
And you know they're bringing us closer to a senseless end

In the midst of transition distant memories begin to emanate
You wish you had not begun this endeavor
Now the light begins to fade

Take a chance alter your destiny
Distant memories begin to dissipate
Take a chance alter your destiny

I hear the distant echoes of forgotten choices
Waiting patiently for a moment of inspiration
Trusting reflections of short duration
With the passage of time my opinion becomes useless
Am I wasting my time?
You've become the scattered remnants of who I thought I was Am I wasting my fucking time?
Finding myself asking questions without answers
Am I wasting my fucking time now?

You wish you had not begun this endeavor
Now the light begins to fade
Reach into the unseen, seek to understand
When you said you were searching I hoped that you'd find me
now
When you said you were searching
When you said you were searching I hoped that you'd find me
now
When you said you were searching

I was chosen by name, generated by those who built me up again
But still, I refuse to let go without restraint
You're a part of much more than this

Now tell me, what the fuck was the point of this self-inflicted misery
Your reality is shifting from one moment to the fucking next

Now I can see the only thing that's keeping me from you
I've tried to make the best of this time
But no one seems to know why you're making the same mistakes
And you know they're bringing us closer to a senseless end