Perfectly

The Anniversary

Turn down the headlights and look my way. We'll tell our parents the best of things no matter how awful t hey seem. The sickness of a family. Trace your eyes, wake and retrieve, The morning sun can look so mean - the color. Kiss your head don't say a thing We'll live forever in books darling. It's the secrets beneath the leaves I keep with me. I'm falling up and down. And I'll never write the letter, I wish you could read the word s perfectly. And I'll never write the letter, I wish you could read the word s perfectly.