

The Anthem Of Mr. Dark

The Arcadian Wild

I never have the time to do the nothing that I want to do
I'm always rushing around being what other people want me to be Well, the fabric of my soul is frayed and falling apart at the seams
I'm tied up and tied down by the strings of other people's dreams

I'm starting to see that that isn't me
And my freedom isn't free
But all I really want is some room to breathe

Someday, I'll learn to say no
Find a way to lighten my load
People take possession of the pieces of my weary heart
I'll learn to let go, whoa
And learn to say no

I'm feeling like a lion lying down behind the bars of this cage
Yeah, the king of the beasts is now the king of this enclosed space
Wear and tear and worry, they've been drawing their lines on my face, oh yes
I feel a whole lot older than my chronological age, yeah

I'm starting to see that that isn't me
And my freedom isn't free
Well, all I really want is some room to be me

Someday, I'll learn to say no
Find a way to lighten my load
People take possession of the pieces of my weary heart
I'll learn to let go, whoa
And learn to say no

Give us your time and give us your money
Just lay down your body, there's no sense in running
Now cut off your hair and put on a tie
Just do what you're told without wondering why
Don't ask for a reason, no matter the season
Sit down and comply 'cause we don't want no free men
We'll say what you are, decide what you're not
You go, and you go, and you never will stop

Someday, I'll learn to say no
Find a way to lighten my load
People take possession of the pieces of my weary heart
I'll learn to let go, whoa
And learn to say no

Give us your time and give us your money (Someday)
Just lay down your body, there's no sense in running (I'll learn to say no)
Now cut off your hair and put on a tie
Just do what you're told without wondering why
Don't ask for a reason, no matter the season (Find a way)
Sit down and comply 'cause we don't want no free men
We'll say what you are, decide what you're not (To lighten my load)
You go, and you go, and you never will

People take possession of the pieces of my weary heart
People take possession of my heart
I'll learn to let go, whoa

And learn to say no

Oh, learn to say no, whoa oh
Learn to say no
