

Waiting Here

The Avener

Here she comes home again
where she cry, tear stain
Took her hands, coldness
Held her close, weeping
There we stood, moments
Winter's home, gaming
White hill snow, all around
She don't care, cause she's safe now

These arms were meant for you
And these shoulders meant to carry you
When you call my name, come running
'til then I'll be waiting, I'll be waiting here
Waiting here

Moments pass, she pulls away then the moment stops, my heart faint
She looks up and we're eye to eye
She whispers "love, never leave my side"

These arms were meant for you
And these shoulders meant to carry you

When you call my name, come running
'til then I'll be waiting, I'll be waiting

Full steps in the storm and Turning, head back home now
Back to where we started
Daybreak, leave me to hang low
Shadow, no more light there
Back to where we started

These arms were meant for you
And these shoulders meant to carry you
When you call my name, come running
'til then I'll be waiting, I'll be waiting
These arms were meant for you
And these shoulders meant to carry you
When you call my name, come running
'til then I'll be waiting, I'll be waiting here
I'll be waiting here, waiting here