Waiting Here

The Avener

Here she comes home again
where she cry, tear stain
Took her hands, coldness
Held her close, weaping
There we stood, moments
Winter's home, gaming
White hill snow, all around
She don't care, cause she's safe now

These arms were meant for you
And these shoulders meant to carry you
When you call my name, come running
'til then I'll be waiting, I'll be waiting here
Waiting here

Moments pass, she pulls away then the moment stops, my heart faint She looks up and we're eye to eye She whispers "love, never leave my side"

These arms were meant for you And these shoulders meant to carry you

When you call my name, come running 'til then I'll be waiting, I'll be waiting

Full steps in the storm and Turning, head back home now Back to where we started Daybreak, leave me to hang low Shadow, no more light there Back to where we started

These arms were meant for you

And these shoulders meant to carry you

When you call my name, come running

'til then I'll be waiting, I'll be waiting

These arms were meant for you

And these shoulders meant to carry you

When you call my name, come running

'til then I'll be waiting, I'll be waiting here

I'll be waiting here, waiting here