

I Never Thought She Knew

The Backyardigans

She once knew she had a lifetime
May her every wish come true
Oh, I guess I should have told her
I never thought she knew
I never thought she knew

I never thought she knew my words
Was the best thing that I have heard
But she couldn't see the pain
That makes me go insane
Only miles and miles on my own
I should've known
I should've known

A heart was full of broken dreams
Have been given all to you
Oh, I guess I should be ever knowing her
I never thought she knew
I never thought she knew

I never thought she knew my words
Was the best thing that I have heard
But she couldn't see the pain
That makes me go insane
Only miles and miles on my own
I should've known
I should've known

"Another day has been possessive," she said
"Yes," I said, "I'm expecting it, too
Oh, I guess I should believe in you."
I never thought she knew
I never thought she knew

I never thought she knew my words
Was the best thing that I have heard
But she couldn't see the pain
That makes me go insane
Only miles and miles on my own
I should've known
I should've known

I told her that I expect no sorrow
But I believe they still do
Oh, I guess I should be living this way
I never thought she knew
I never thought she knew

I never thought she knew my words
Was the best thing that I have heard
But she couldn't see the pain
That makes me go insane
Only miles and miles on my own
I should've known
I should've known

She once knew she had a lifetime

May her every wish come true
Oh, I guess I should have told her
I never thought she knew
I never thought she knew
I never thought she knew
I never really thought that she knew