Normal

The Bears

that's your mom, that's your dad, and that's the house that you once had dig that car sittin' in the drive - you'd all pile in and go fo r a ride

normal like a setting on a washing machine normal like a norman rockwell american dream... your mother drank, your dad took drugs so you did too - it was your first love the marriage failed and true love died you laughed it off 'cause boys don't cry

normal like a setting on a washing machine normal when christmas felt like halloween when a family explodes and the universe cracks you can run away but you crawl right back either way we all must learn you can't start a fire without something to burn

normal like a setting on a washing machine
normal we go in dirty we come out clean that's your wife these are your kids and this is the house where you all live that's your car sittin' in the drive lets all pile in and go for a ride

when history repeats the scene
