On

The Bears

look at the sky the sun is rising with another day to lay at our feet
are the questions that keep us intrigued look at the world of possibilities what happens now and where do we go? and there's a kind of freedom in knowing it's a little beyond our control that life keeps moving on people laugh, markets crash, someone takes a photograph the mail arrives, babies cry, someone tries suicide

a building burns, a crime occurs, tankers sink and satellites blink people shop, traffic stops, but life keeps moving on look at the sky, the new horizon look at the changes it will involve someone will die, a country may fall but the world will continue to roll cause life keeps moving on
