

Floundering

The Broadways

oh well, the shitpile caught on fire, it seems like natural selection, property values were plummeting anyway, didn't say they hear the people say, "can't we all just get along?"
sounds good to me as long as you stay in your shitty and now crispy little town, whose fault was it when south central burned to the ground?
judicial rape perpetrated by the state? two hundred or so years of stored up rage? it's something that i think about, how upset people are,
and i haven't any reason to complain, plenty of good food, good friends, a nice apartment to live in,
and still i don't feel all that great, well i'm content but i'm not satisfied, it makes it hard to live your fking life, a tv and a 6 pack dictate my day, i'm stupid, soft and lazy, i forgot how to be brave, and it looks like i'll never have to learn, complacency is the smoke alarm that insures that white cities never burn