

Superbloom

The Bronx

I followed her into the hills
Of lovers past
We lost our heads
But our hearts were still attached
The earth was blue the sky was black
Over the rocks
And through the trees we shared a soul
No need to lie no need to compete for control
She wonders when I wonder why

Nobody lives nobody dies
Until she opens up her eyes
She is the sun
She is the moon
My desert flower
My superbloom

How many times will we have to say goodbye
Only to reappear back in each others lives
She drew a circle in the sky this worlds a tomb
It'll be your doom unless you fight
We sat for hours under rays of golden light
Nothing was wrong nothing was right

Nobody lives nobody dies
Until she opens up her eyes
She is the sun
She is the moon
My desert flower
My superbloom

No sun will set at least not yet

No cloud will fall she sees it all

Nobody lives nobody dies
Until she opens up her eyes
She is the sun
She is the moon
My desert flower
My superbloom

She is the sun
She is the moon

My superbloom!
