

Prove You Wrong

The Brook & The Bluff

I got a feeling you're not listening to me
A couple weeks was all you needed to breathe in, breathe out again
Cause I've been so disposable
I let you go to start a new ending
But I've been spending

Way too long trying to prove you wrong
Nothing ever would do
Took a little too much time waiting on the perfect line to send you
But I never got through

I got a feeling you're not leaning on me
What kind of magic did you need to believe in me?
A little conversation, I got a new translation
And I've found new meaning, but I'm not believing it's

Way too long trying to prove you wrong
Nothing ever would do
Took a little too much time waiting on the perfect line to send you
But I never got through

Every time we said goodbye, I could see it in your eyes
You wanna stay, but not today
Every time we start again, I'm afraid of rushing in
To let you know I've always known

Way too long, trying to prove you wrong
Nothing ever would do
Took a little too much time, waiting on the perfect line to send you
But I never got through
