The Browning

This will not be the end
This will not be the end
The time has come for me to prove my worth
My selflessness will be the light that shines

At the end of time a moment will come when just one man remains
Standing alone will he find the strength
To carry on after all he loves is dead and gone?
Everything is dead and gone

This will not be the end
This will not be the end
The time has come to prove my worth
Your selfishness will run its course

What are you asking?
What are you asking?
Should we weigh the life of one man to the future of all mankind?
What are you asking?
What are you asking?
How could you be so selfish?

I will not fail
I will not let this be the end
I will not fail
I will not let this be the end
I will not fail
I will not let this be the end
