The Chainsmokers

I go through your iPad lookin' for
Something that I used to have
Guess I finally lost my mind
I wish that I could take my number back
Go back to the place we met
Start this up a second time
You're living in a past life, twenty-five
All your friends are verified
Actin' like they're first in line
I'm looking at your life through cellophane
Hoping things would stay the same
I was always by your side

And isn't it strange how we're strangers again?
Isn't it strange how we're strangers again?
And now we're strangers again
And now we're strangers again

You were just a downtown socialite
Ship I pass on summer nights
Shadow that I can't define
Turned into a gaslight kerosene
Love that felt like seventeen
Hurt me till I feel alive
I wonder where your friends are
Where do you go, who do you know now?
You play the same card, swear to God, do you call him?

Isn't it strange how we're strangers again?
And now we're strangers again
And now we're strangers again

You were just a downtown socialite
Ship I pass on summer nights
Shadow that I can't define
Turned into a gaslight kerosene
Love that felt like seventeen
Hurt me till I feel alive

Isn't it strange how we're strangers again?
Now both of us know, we were better as friends
When it all, when it all falls apart
Sometimes you let go just to know where to start

Something that I used to have
Something that I used to have
Something that I used to have
And now we're strangers again
Something that I used to have

You were just a downtown socialite
Ship I pass on summer nights
Shadow that I can't define
Turned into a gaslight kerosene
Love that felt like seventeen
Hurt me till I feel alive
