

The Drifter

The Convictions

This is the moment, save your breath
This is the moment, when silence is stronger
Deep down, deep down
I keep the truth buried under my chest

I'll make you listen
I'll show you everything
The secrets that tore apart heart from flesh, mind, and soul
Right here, right now

My Almighty, let's show this lifeless world who's King

It's time we drown out the voices (the voices, the voices)
It's time we sink all the doubt and fear of who we should be

My reflections won't drift away
Oh God, oh God, I won't let go

I've always said you'd see the light in me (the light in me)
I've always told you, you'd be listening
I've always said (I've always said) you'd see the truth in me
I've always told you, I'd show you everything

Take my eyes, take my hands, take my heart
Your vultures would love to tear me to pieces
Admit it, you would the love the taste

No death can separate us
Although my body withers, my spirits eternal
Just lift your hands and sing with me
This life has purpose

I'm alive

I'm crying out to the heavens from the depths of the sea
I just need you to know, I just need you to know
No matter how far I drift away
No matter what they say, I still believe in You

You see, no matter the distance, no matter the depth that may pull us apart
I have yet to give up nor discover a reason not to believe
No matter how dark, I've always seen your sight
You've brought out best in me and now I see the light

I've always said you'd see the light in me (the light in me)
I've always told you, you'd be listening
I've always said (I've always said) you'd see the truth in me
I've always told you, I'd show you everything
Everything

You have the power to change the world with your heart
With your voice, it's time to speak up
You have the power to change the world through your voice
With your prayers, it's time to speak up now

It's time to speak up now
We won't be silent

Speak up
