The owner of the lonely hearts
A toast to being apart
I never sought to really try too much
I've got a good mind to start
Well I [?] fail
You knew what this entails
To gave it a year but it still ended in tears
It's just too little, not too late

But if he decides to let her down
Maybe I could ask her out
I hope she knows
I hope she knows
I hope she knows the truth

So try not to let it show You made it this far alone You dreamt too big, you'll have to live with it Who in their right mind could've known?

But if he decides to let her down
Maybe I could ask her out
I hope she knows
I hope she knows
I hope she knows the truth

And though you find it hard to trust yourself Well you never really thought about anyone else Now please you try It's worthwhile

Just try, it might be nice Just want friends in this fight Just try, it might be nice Just want friends in this fight

But if he decides to let her down
Maybe I could ask her out
I hope she knows
I hope she knows
I hope she knows the truth

And as you tell yourself that it's meant to be You're never really sure just what to believe yeah At least you tried It's worthwhile