

Cheating With You

The Correspondents

You changed your hair from blonde to black
I fell for you all over again
Now the darker you is back
It starts where I thought it might end
It's not just the colour of your hair that's changed
It's your head that you seem to have rearranged
You now know how to put me back in my place
Anything I want from you I think I got to chase

And it feels so damn good
The way it should

My God, have you changed
Even your kisses feel strange and brand new
You've grown an attitude
My nice little gal's got rude
So hello stranger
Ooh I feel an air of danger
The buzz of new love
The same hand deals but in a different glove

And it feels so damn good
The way it should
The way it should

You changed your look, your style and the love that you give
You've become the girl I would have cheated on you with
You changed your look, your style and the love that you give
You've become the girl I would have cheated on you with

You've been repackaged
I unwrap and see that you've been remade
I'm amazed you've managed
To metamorphose that remain unfazed
I've seen you once more
Deconstructed, reformed
I thought we were winding down
Walking to the exit
But you've turned us around

And it feels so damn good
The way it should
The way it should

You changed your look, your style and the love that you give
You've become the girl I would have cheated on you with

The new you comes through
Where's the old you been?
What do I do to keep such a hard witch keen?
Now I have to change to keep you surprised
And treat you, treat you mean to keep you close
Oh you're the one that I love most

And it feels so damn good
The way it should

(You changed your look, your style and the love that you give)
(You've become the girl I would have cheated on you with)

You changed your look, your style and the love that you give
You've become the girl I would have cheated on you with
You changed your look, your style and the love that you give
You've become the girl I would have cheated on you with