

Other People

The Divine Comedy

There have been other people in your life
You have had other lovers, so have I
You have talked very sweetly
You have felt very deeply
You have shared many stories
With the ones who came before me

There have been other people in your life
Did you change theirs
The way that you changed mine
And without them, anyhow
Would you be who you are now
And would you even want me in your life

But in the greater scheme of things
Just think of all the "might have beens"
There is no "you", there is no "me"
When set against eternity
And jealousy is just an urge
To rule over the universe
It is Worthless and destructive
And always counter productive

There have been other people in your life
You have had other lovers
So have I
And um, blah, blah, blah...