A broken heart a rosy stain... forgotten pain just a picture that you're always repainting after the rain

Don't tell me that it's so worth saving Don't tell me that it's so worth thinking back Don't tell me you can hear forever cause in this silence I can hear...

The sighs of December
that make you remember the time soft and tender when the world went white and the snow was falling in your eyes

Reading the past then the future came way too fast Always feeling like the page you're turning is second to last

So do you fall apart at the glimpse of memories running by? You take shame to heart and everyday fall victim to

The sighs of December
that make you remember
regret in it's splendor when the world was wet with the tears falling from your eyes

I can hear the sighs... and the tears in your eyes.