

Something Ahead Of You

The Fixx

The past left the room in silence
And the moon flooded in Looking back through the window of lost opportunities
So often missed or ignored
A thousand times I started heading for the door
Only to turn around and face this room once more

But only now you see it, oh yea
Something ahead of you
Something I think will change your point of view
Something ahead of you
Only now the walls have cracked
It's all breaking through

So the truth finds you at dawn shooting
A reflection of you
As a vast abyss looms before us now
The last icons fall
A little more for less became nothing at all

Oh, now you see it
Now you see it
There's something ahead of you
Something I think will change your point of view
Only now the walls have cracked
It's all breaking through

The choice is yours, your head is split in two

What does it matter?
It's water under the bridge
There's something ahead of you
Go around it, know better
Drive straight through
Move aside, in the road there's something ahead of you
Change your point of view

A little more for less became nothing at all
At least the delusion failed and the appetite for war
So far ahead of you
It's right ahead of you
It's right ahead of you
It's driving straight through

A little more for less became nothing at all
At least the delusion failed and the appetite for war