The Folk Implosion

Give your heart to a stranger
Turn your back on a friend
Walk away, unafraid of the end
Hang the day on a promise
Breaking overhead
The pieces fall, they haven't cut me yet
Dare me to watch your moon
Disappear into a trembling night
The end could feel all right

Through a window, open every door
No use holding on

Go on into, go all of you
Let me be, let me be
Released

Now you are a stranger
We'll never talk again
But you're everywhere, all we could've been Whatever I hoped to find
The answer or the perfect lie
I let it pass me by

We share the pain, some rise again
Let me be, let me be
Released
