

The Missing Part

The Forester Sisters

My life was scattered
Without a clue
To get it straight seemed like more than I could do
I felt useless
Deep inside
Like somebody just along for the ride

Everything fell into place
The moment I saw your face
All of life's mysteries
Suddenly made sense to me

Ain't it funny how the pieces fit together
Once you finally found the missing part
I thought I'd be incomplete forever
But all that I was missing was your heart
Baby, all that I was missing was your heart

I was lonely
Lost and cold
When you reached out your hand for me to hold
You gave me shelter
You kept me warm
I felt all I ever searched for in your arms
I saw the grand design
Your soul reached out to mine
All of love's mysteries suddenly were history

Ain't it funny how the pieces fit together
Once you finally found the missing part
I thought I'd be incomplete forever
But all that I was missing was your heart
Baby, all that I was missing was your heart

Ain't it funny how the pieces fit together
Once you finally found the missing part
I thought I'd be incomplete forever
But all that I was missing was your heart
Baby, all that I was missing was your heart
