

Melodic stanzas
are symphonizing their way through your weary head

To feed your distrust And fill it's mouth with the desire to soulfully be one with your creation

Not a subject to control
you call upon a higer power
for help and inspiration

The crowd waits and turns their faces towards you expectantly you give them what they need But their useless criticism makes you die
a bit more inside

Not a subject to control
you call upon a higer power
for help and inspiration

Oh, I swoon
while loudspeakers play soft music

Leaning
over your fourtieth masterpiece You must have loved the colour of these violins

I wish I knew you
Your fit of insanity makes me sad

I wish you knew your music was to stay forever
And I hope....

I have no clue
if you know how much it matters
And i hope....