

We were sailing on waves of silver
There were echoes in the wind
When we raised our sails to capture them
The ship was lifted up and in and we sang
Ohh, ohh
Ohh, ohh

Now the country that we came from
They play silver melodies
And the kings and queens all write their dreams
On silver pages we would read
And we sang, ohh, ohh
Ohh, ohh

We will cross any water any water
And if we find there's a song that's getting stronger
We will sound all our silver songs
And we will know if they belong

Now the echoes were getting louder
And a chorus filled the air
When the voices fell they broke the spell
That tied us to our silver chairs
And we sang, ohh, ohh
Ohh, ohh

We were taken through the shadows
We were carried through the night
When the sun appeared
My God my fears of silver melted in the light
And we saw the world with different eyes
And we sang

Ohh, Ohh, Ohh, Ohh

We will cross any water any water
And if we find there's a song that's getting stronger
We will sound all our silver songs
And we will know if they belong

We will sound all our silver songs
And we will know if they belong

We will, we will, we will cross any
Any water and, any water and
If we, if we, if we find there's a
There's a song getting stronger and stronger and
When we find it we'll, we will sound all our
We will sound all our, songs of silver
We will know, we will know
