

The Stone

The Gray Havens

The stone heard inside
The first breath of life
It rolled as it shook
By the ground where they stood
Where the angels stood by
Oh, the sight

And when the men for fear and dread
Were hiding safe away
The door burst wide
And a woman's voice cried
"There's none inside the grave"

There was a way
Even death He would break
For the fires that preyed on the innocent
Burned to the ground
Torn by the sound of His voice
To the ground came the oh, oh
The curtain came finally down

The curse is broken now

Gone, the despair in their eyes
Their song in the night
That was death now is life so instead there is
Already won, for the good all is done
To become like the One
Who would suffer, could suffer
Already won, for the good all is done
To become like the One
Who would suffer, could suffer

Oh-oh-oh-oh
Oh-oh-oh-oh

We were far, yet
We were taken from the dark, yes
Turned from stone to flesh, new hearts, yes

We were far, yet
We were taken from the dark, yes
Turned from stone to flesh, new hearts, yes

We were far, yet
We were taken from the dark, yes
Turned from stone to flesh, new hearts, yes

The curse is broken
Stone brought to life
