My Only Child

The Highwomen

I know you wish You had a brother who had blue eyes just like you I know you wish You had a sister you could tell your secrets to Maybe we'll miss Having four sets of china on the table But I guarantee you this: You mean more to me than branches to a maple

Pink painted walls Your face in my locket Your daddy and me Your tiny back pocket Mama's first love Last of my kind You'll always be my only child

Well I can't let go Of watercolor memories that you made me And I'm holding on To the innocence of tea parties and daydreams

Pink painted walls Your face in my locket Your daddy and me Your tiny back pocket Mama's first love Last of my kind You'll always be my only child

Someday your wish Will come true when your first baby's born You'll cherish every kiss And wonder how you could love something more

Pink painted walls Your face in my locket Your daddy and me Your tiny back pocket Mama's first love The last of my kind You'll always be my only child My only child My only child My only child

I know you wish You had a brother who had blue eyes just like you
