

Lotus Eater

The Horrors

If the world should end today
We've spent too much time
Worrying about yesterday

If the world should end today
We've had our time
And time is now slipping away

Time is now slipping away
Faster than yesterday

If the world should end today
We've had our time
And time is now slipping away

We've had our time
And time is now slipping away
Faster than yesterday

My days are all uncovered
They float back through my mind
Recalling the forms of the people you loved
Then leaving the past behind

Putting a name to the darkness
That occupies my heart
All this decay washed away by the rain
Moving back inside
Into my memory
Moving into the light

If the world should end today
There's been too much time
Worrying about yesterday

If the world should end today
There's been too much time
Worrying about yesterday

If the world should end today
There's been too much time
Worrying about yesterday

If the world should end today
There's been too much time
Worrying about yesterday

If the world should end today
There's been too much time
Worrying about yesterday