

Last Raindrop

The Idoru

for those who live bereft of hope you can be the one, like the last raindrop for a flower thats fading on and on. the need takes them into the line of naives, they keep believing in your dirty propaganda, media tricks. honest lies will cut the ground from below your feet. tell me what came true of the big promises ! there are always excuses, pointing and hiding, in order not to take responsibility. the power has armed you well with greed no respect for the servants, just bring them to their knees! stop finding mistakes in us, we are not the ones to blame. i'm tired of believing in those who kill and play god in this game.
