

But A Memory

The Jokerr

I lie here alone just wondering
Always at the edge of town
On the same hill watching the sun go down
And I grin when I'm caught imagining
Somewhere in the roaming clouds
There lies another world, now
Thinking, I've landed the best of use
I wish that you all could see too, and I see
That might be a bit outlandish
After all I found it for me, yea
Here we go now...
After all I found it for me

I'm missing songs with melodies
Transcribed from an ancient home
That makes it never ever ever get old
I find it so hard to ever be
On this with a second soul
And I've grown to know before
I too find it hard to imagine
Another fool quiet like me
Somewhere on a hilltop wondering
If another then there could be
But if I've learned me anything
I can guarantee
Someday these thoughts will be but memories to me

[Bridge]

Sometimes when I think of
What the future holds
I get cold
After all that I've been through
I know, there's so much more to do
I've been through the worst part
Stop right here, I'm
I know
Moving on, moving on
Know that I've been cold
Nowhere to go, nowhere to go
I just walk on, never see this evil eye,
Dreams change in the shadows of the east supply
And me so

Sometimes in the night I marvel, at the stars of the eastern sky
Cause they always seem to want to hide
So often I'm asking why they go, at the sign of the first morning light
They're never too divine, I try
Now, If I see every other skyfall
Could you follow what I see
I'mma build 10 years of publicity
Would you ever hear what I hear
I don't know yet but still I pray
Jesus hope for me
Someday this all will be but a memory to me
