No more troubles, In this town. Silent night, for a change.

Brand new year, Coming up ahead. You know it's been so long, Since I rang one in?

I close my eyes,
Think about the path I took.
Just when I think these times,
Have gotten the best of me.

I can see my mother in the kitchen. My father on the floor, Watching television. It's a wonderful life.

Cinnamon candles burning.

Snowball fights outside.

Smile below each nose and above each chin.

Stomp my boots before I go back in.

I wasted my wishes, On Saturday nights. Boy what I would give, For just one more.

I soften my heart, Shocked the world. Do you hear my voice? Do you know my name? Light my ways, With my head. Light my ways,

I can see my mother in the kitchen. My father on the floor, Watching television. It's a wonderful life.

Cinnamon candles burning.

Snowball fights outside.

Smile below each nose and above each chin.

Families are together.
Presents piled high.
Frost on all the windows,
What a wonderful night.

Cinnamon candles burning.

Snowball fights outside.

Smile below each nose and above each chin.

So happy they found me,

Love was all around me. Stomp my boots before I go back ina
