

Exit Sign

The Knocks

I could have conversation
But I thought I might be good with you
Fell lack of a motive
From some material, universal girl
Oh babe

Say, you never think of love on nights like this
But if that's really true
Why did I see it written on your face
When you saw me escape out your hotel room

I said sorry, I should have been forthcoming
Told you what I was wanting
And I kept you on your toes
You said, don't worry about it
Just tell me you're not unsold
Cause you can't predict emotions
Baby we never know, so
Don't worry about it

Don't worry about it

Am I still ruthless if I fuck around and break my only rule
Cause I can feel every magnet in
My moral compass trying to lead me back to you

But, I said sorry, I should have been forthcoming
Told you what I was wanting
And I kept you on your toes
You said, don't worry about it
Just tell me you're not unsold
Cause you can't predict emotions
Baby we never know, so
Don't worry about it

Don't worry about it

The flickering lights
Fading underneath the exit sign
But I, don't worry about it
Baby in time, I could find a way to empathize
Don't worry about it
Baby in time, I could find a way to empathize
Don't worry about it

Don't worry about it

I said sorry, I should have been forthcoming
Told you what I was wanting
And I kept you on your toes
You said, don't worry about it
Just tell me you're not unsold
Cause you can't predict emotions
Baby we never know, so
Don't worry about it
