

Said And Done

The Levellers

You see the mist above the water
Blinding all that's there to see
You fell in love with nature's daughter
Or the idea you see
So many moments were made there
A chance to stay perhaps to flee
But when you've taken what you wanted
There was nothing left to see

She said she'd wait for you
As you closed her eyes

All the things we've said and done
They're not enough so run child run
Oh run child run

And who alone knows what they're doing
In a place that seems surreal
Any fool can plan his ruin
In a world that's down at heel
So as the mist clears from the water
Will it give you second sight
Can you remember what you're here for
And will you take it as you're right?

She said she'd wait for you
As you closed her eyes
