

May You Be Well

The Lone Bellow

Oh my Loretta
Where do your eyes go
I sit beside you
But I do not know
Do they find darkness
I've been there before
But I can't tell you what's behind that door

My Loretta
Where will your feet turn
When you go silent
I feel your soul burn
Does it seem lonely
I've been there before
But I can't tell you what might be in store

May you be well
May you be well
You may find joy
You might find pain
May you be well

Oh my Loretta
What will your arms do
When I'm not there
I'm not there to hold you
Will they find something else to hold on to

May you be well
May you be well
You may find joy
You might find pain
Sorrow and love
But you will remain
May you be well

May you be well
May your heart be open
To whatever changes
That wind may be blowing
Whatever darkness
That you are concerned with
May you find peace
That is everlasting
Even when circumstances
They are crashing
Oh you can stand firm on the everlasting
May you be well

Oh my Loretta
Where will your streets lead
Where might your roads go
What might make you bleed
That fire inside of you I may never know
But I'm beside you forevermore

May you be well

May you be well
You may find joy
You might find pain
May you be well
May you be well
You may find joy
You might find pain
Sorrow and love
But you will remain
May you be well
