

Enough

The Magic Numbers

Bruised by the night
Deceived by our desire
We chose our disguise, yet evolve into another
As we race for the prize
There's gotta be more than this
But then who's to decide?
The more you got, the more you crave

The hand reaching out is reflected in the water
Now you're drenched to the bone
As the image it nearer
But you can't turn it around
For there's gotta be more to this
As the wolves they surround
Before you know, it pulls you in

Is it ever good enough?
Am I ever good enough?
Will it ever be enough?
Can't stop thinking it never was

Well I've been walking on broken glass
I've seen the shadow within the cracks
And if you follow him, he'll always lead you back.
We're consumed by our doubts and crippled by emotions
The fear's crying out
I see my darkest days before my eyes

Is it ever good enough?
Am I ever good enough?
Will it ever be enough?
Can't stop thinking it never was
Is it ever good enough?
Am I ever good enough?

If all the stars aligned as you dance with the dead
Would you realize that this was all in your head
All the years unwind
You stand alone
You want it to last, it never does
Forever's a path that never was Still you hope it will pass, it never does
Like the shadow that cast the two of us
We're just part of a pact that never was