

Love of My Life

Main Ingredient

There's something lovely, lovely in your eyes
There's something lovely, lovely in your eyes

I [?] the substance that is known to me as fear
Working for survival but my mind is far from clear
Standing on the edge of nothing, waiting for my time
And hanging in my emptiness, I find

There's something lovely, lovely in your eyes
Something to give me peace in my mind

Like the day the daydreamer was left outside [?]
You're the only thing, my love, that makes me life worthwhile
From time to time, I find myself going every which-way
In my solitude I kneel and pray

There's something lovely, lovely in your eyes
Something to give me peace in my mind

There's something lovely, lovely in your eyes
Something to give me peace in my mind
