Salesman, where you gonna go?

To sell all your of your goods today

Salesman, gonna walk along the street, see friends along the way \boldsymbol{y}

Well salesman, with your wooden cart that you push along while you walk

Hey, salesman, got a little dog whose tail wags when you talk You always wear a smile, even though you've gotta walk ten mile s

Short lifespan, good time salesman

Yep, yep salesman got it on the street, whether it's hot or col d

It's salesman, well, you work real hard,

Until every part is sold

Salesman as the years go by,

People changing every day

Hey, salesman 'till the end of time you'll be livin' in the sam e way

You always wear a smile, you love 'em fast and you live wild Short life span, but ain't life grand?

Copper kettles, different kinds of tin There goes salesman and he's sailing high again He's sailing so high, high, sailing so high

Salesman where you gonna go to sell all of your goods today Yup, salesman, gonna walk along the street, see friends along the way

Hey, salesman, with your wooden cart that you push along while you walk

Hey, salesman with your secret goods that you push while you ta lk

You always wear a smile,

Even though you've gotta walk a hundred ten miles Short life span but the whole thing's grand

Salesman

Now, well, I tried the one that you put it in and you have to ${\tt d}$ o it

Manually. But I'd like the one that you just plug it in and it does it all

By itself in a real long strand and you cut 'em up. It's easier to do it

That way because, well, I put all the stuff in there and it kee ps flippin'

Out. And I can't get the thing to stick together anything. Coup led with

The fact that I have to stick two of them together to even get on out of it And they always end up lookin' like Lucky Strikes.
