

Standard Bitter Love Song #4

The Mountain Goats

well I see you've left me a photograph of a leopard tearing an antelope in half.
what have you done? what have you done?
what have you done with our love?
what have you done?

well I see you've resorted to petty theft.
you try to take something from me,
but there's nothing left.
what have done with our love?
where have you put it?

well I hear you calling from way over there and I can't find it anywhere.
what have you done?
