

Rest In You Tonight

The Oak Ridge Boys

Her little face against the window
It's another lonely night
She's thinking about her daddy once again
Mom sadly watches on she can't fill the void
In desperation she cries to her dear friend

Come down please Jesus come on down
Heal our broken world and make it right
Come down please Jesus come on down
The hopes and fears of all the years
Still rest in you tonight

The little house they once called a home
They'd soon be forced to leave
The jobs were gone nothing coming in
Their future that once looked bright
Grew dimmer with each day
With faith that's strong they cry out to Him

We can be assured that all will turn our right
As we rest in you tonight
