

Charity is your demand, but you never showed me any lenience
Empathy and violence reconciled under your austere diligence
How can you see yourself as a proud child of disobedience
When you just said to me
You've always lived on the leash of my convenience? (You promised me)

Charity is your demand (But you never showed me any lenience)
Empathy and violence (Reconciled under your austere diligence)
How can you see yourself (As a proud child of disobedience)
When you just said to me
(You always lived on the leash of my convenience?)
(You promised me)

Yes, and this is how it ends
Everything's been said, we're good, we are done now
Purified and calm
Look at me once more before you turn around
Defy the debris storm

Charity is your demand, never showed me any lenience
Empathy and violence reconciled by your diligence
How can you see yourself as a proud child of disobedience
When you have always lived
On the leash of my convenience?

You've always lived on the leash of my convenience
You've always lived on the leash of my convenience

Yes, and this is how it ends
Everything's been said, we're good, we're done now
Purified and calm
Look at me once more before you turn around
Defy the debris storm
And defy the debris storm
