

here's your ticket, you better believe (better believe it's true) long live the life we led at 210 (two one ooh that's you) we're on a journey so you'd better run try to get to your train on time

i'm always going back always going back to always going back to where you are down in the courtyard is where you'll find me going back to where you are

and there's nothing that i can tell you that you don't already know

i might get away from these 4 walls (i might fly away)
i might escape from what's holding me (i might run away)
here in apple town is where i called you here is where i called you for advice

out in the turning tide that's where you'll find me
