

Too Far Gone

The Pineapple Thief

I woke up entirely in shame
And whispered the dying words, again and again and again and again
What ever happened to the rain? When it was easier

You tell me you've nothing left to give?
You're too far gone to salvage what love left

You tell me each moment's left to live?
You're too far gone to salvage what love left