

Borderline

The Poodles

A mother took her last breath without losing her pride
With a smiling face she said, lying on her bed
"Precious one, now you must go,
the wolfs are everywhere
This land is full of fear, and there's no future here"

I walk the borderline
I'm fighting to survive
For reasons I can't see
The doors are closed on me
I walk the borderline
Running on adrenaline
Someone explain to me
Why I'm the enemy
If you would be color blind
Would I still walk the borderline

In another time and circumstance, would we still be here?
Standing on the brim, swearing free from sin
The fragment that is left of me, is that all that you can see
All bridges they have burned, the point of no return

I walk the borderline
I'm fighting to survive
For reasons I can't see
The doors are closed on me
I walk the borderline
Running on adrenaline
Someone explain to me
Why I'm the enemy
If you would be color blind
Would I still walk the borderline

I walk the borderline
I'm fighting to survive
For reasons I can't see
The doors are closed on me
I walk the borderline
Running on adrenaline
Someone explain to me
Why I'm the enemy
If you would be color blind
Would I still walk the borderline
