

Winds Of Change

The Raven Age

The days have come for me to
To leave behind all I've ever known
What will the path I take choose
I'll never know until I do
I feel the time approaching soon
To leave the place of my whole childhood
They say you're now on your own
When I all I want is my safe home

Just don't appreciate how you've been living
Until it's all taken away
Remember all of the basic traditions
That you've been brought upon

Life flashes before your eyes to see just who you've become
You tried to remember
But still cannot seem to embrace the thought of you moving on
Why is this happening

I am waiting for
I await for the day to come
When the place of our memories is slowly taken away
I'll never be ready for the
Winds of change

The tides have changed which will bring resolution
I just cannot see it right now
Maybe I shouldn't have taken it for granted
I'll fall on my feet somehow

Life flashes before your eyes to see just who you've become
You tried to remember
But still cannot seem to embrace the thought of you moving on
Why is this happening

I am waiting for
I await for the day to come
When the place of our memories is slowly taken away
I'll never be ready for the
Winds of change

As time defeats me
Will I ever find my way from here
Or will I keep returning
To the place I've always known
I must open my eyes
I can't ignore these changing times
Time waits for no man
To see for what he finds

I'm lying wide awake cause now
This place has made me who I am
Looking through pictures of the days
When all your worries fade away
As desolation takes me now
My mind descends from common ground
I wish away my chances for the

The chance to be at home once more

I am waiting for

I await for the day to come

When the place of our memories is slowly taken away

I'll never be ready for the

Winds of change

Remember all of the basic traditions

You've been brought up on
